Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Friday 04 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
A chilly night, followed by a warm and sunny day.

This Evening and Tonight:
A fine and dry night with light winds and largely clear skies. Temperatures falling into the low single figures of Celsius, with mist and shallow fog patches forming in prone rural spots by dawn. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Saturday:
Any early mist and fog patches soon lifting, giving way to a dry morning with plenty of sunshine. A bit more cloud around during the afternoon, though feeling pleasantly warm. Maximum temperature 21 deg C (70 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Warm on Sunday, with cloud breaking into scattered showers. Cooler and cloudier on Monday, with mist, low cloud and showery rain. Warming up on Tuesday, with sunshine and afternoon showers.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.